

DR. JACK C. HILEMAN
Research Wins Statewide Notice

ECC Chemistry Instructor Addresses Teachers Assn.

Research in the field of chemistry with chemical compounds known as the metal carbonyls has brought statewide recognition to Dr. Jack C. Hileman, chemistry instructor at El Camino College.

Recently Dr. Hileman addressed the meeting of the California Assn. of Chemistry Teachers in session at Fresno State College. His address, "Zero Valence Metal Carbonyls for teaching Molecular Structure," reported on some applications to chemical education of the research work he performed at the University of California at Los Angeles during the academic year, 1960-1961.

Hileman, at El Camino since 1950, was on leave during this period studying under the provisions of a National Science Foundation Science Faculty Fellowship.

While at UCLA, he was the first chemist to synthesize technetium carbonyl. The research work was performed under the guidance of Dr. Herbert D. Kaesz, of the UCLA chemistry faculty.

HILEMAN'S work led to his authorship of the chapters on the metal carbonyls in each of two soon to be published technical books.

The first, "The Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology," is being edited by Anthony Standen, John Wiley and Sons, and will be published by the Interscience Publishing Co.

The second, "Preparative Inorganic Chemistry," is edited by Dr. W. C. Jolly, of the University of California, Berkeley, and will also be published by Interscience.

Hileman presented the results of this work at the American Chemical Society National Meeting in Chicago, September 1961, and discussed the work and its implications from fresh-man college chemistry at one of the El Camino division of physical science seminars earlier this semester.

A graduate of Ventura Junior College and the University of California at Berkeley, Hileman returned to El Camino College this year after a sabbatical leave during which he earned his doctor of philosophy degree in chemistry at the University of the Pacific.

DURING THIS period, he established another research and teaching interest concerned with liquid ammonia. His doctoral thesis entitled, "High Frequency in Liquid Ammonia," has been copyrighted on microfilm by the University of the Pacific.

Dr. Hileman is currently serving as the chairman-elect of the southern section of the California Assn. of Chemistry Teachers.

He is a resident of Torrance, where he resides with his wife, Ruth and their daughter, Linea.

Torrance Cooperative Treats Dads to a Day

Daddy's Day, held recently at Torrance Cooperative Nursery School was very special for 25 dads, and even more special for their kiddies.

Director Mrs. Alvin Kaye kept this Saturday morning as routine as possible.

Dads pitched in to help with paint aprons, hand washing, supervised crafts and playground activities. They observed as children used the games, puzzles, and numerous toys offered at this well-equipped school.

Located at 4558 W. 182nd St., Torrance, the school is part of Torrance Unified School District, Adult Education Division.

It offers a parent-education course three evenings a month, and a nursery school program four mornings a week, at which member mothers assist Director Alvin Kaye.

A membership of 25 families is maintained to assure a complement of six mother assistants each school day.

AS FATHER members, their role is usually the behind-scenes one of constructing and repairing school equipment.

Girl Scouts Entertain Councils

South Bay Council Senior Girl Scouts have chosen "Let's Go - Scouting!" as the theme of the conference they are hosting this weekend for 50 representatives from area-wide councils and 200 local senior scouts.

Featured speaker yesterday was Dr. Eve Schindler Rainman. Group discussions were held before and after lunch, followed by a Girl Scout sing. Dinner last night was followed by a dance to which Explorer Scouts were invited.

Today's activities include attendance at local church services; a barbecue at Redondo Beach Park; a tour of harbor facilities; and closing ceremonies at 2:30 p.m.

Girls participating represent Anaheim, Burbank, Centinela Valley, East San Gabriel Valley, El Segundo, Greater Long Beach, Los Angeles, Newport Harbor, Santa Monica, Santiago, and Tautona Girl Scout Councils.

Miss Marian Wilson is advisor to South Bay's senior girl planning board, which carried the responsibility of the conference.

OFFICERS OF THE cooperative nursery school are William Susoeff, president; Mrs. Harry Tippins, secretary; Dale Fleming, treasurer and chairman; James Anderson, fathers' work; Mrs. Edward Bigelow, library; Mrs. George Hermann, ways and means; Mrs. Richard Jones, membership; Mrs. Charles Picker, purchasing; Mrs. George Stanich, scheduling; Mrs. Francis Stockman, publicity, and Mrs. William Susoeff, school bulletin.

Seniors Visit Career Center

The senior class at West High School attended the 1963 Career Guidance Center at the Great Western Exhibit Center Wednesday. The career guidance center is sponsored by the office of Los Angeles County superintendent of schools.

Extensive displays covering a wide variety of occupational fields were seen by the West High seniors. Seventy-five companies had representatives available to answer questions as well as distribute occupational materials.

Over 400 occupational or job titles were covered by the participating representatives.

Students received information about occupational characteristics, qualifications, and requirements as well as knowledge of the present labor force.

A Closer Look

HOLLYWOOD — Broadcasters have recently lost a five-year campaign to obtain free access to our courts of law with TV cameras and microphones.

The ban on such live coverage came into effect in 1937 after the news media helped turn the Lindberg kidnap trial into a theatrical spectacle. As a result, the American Bar Assn. decreed Canon 35 of its Code of Judicial Ethics which prohibited radio microphones and news cameras in the courts.

Broadcasters have based their campaign for repeal of Canon 35 on two basic ideas. First, they maintained, the techniques of live coverage of trials has so improved since 1937 that it's now possible to cover trials with little or no interference with the proceedings. Secondly, they contend, broadcast news media deserve the same rights of access as do reporters for newspapers.

HOWEVER, the American Bar Assn. recently refused to revoke the ruling, stating that "proceedings in court should be conducted with tithing dignity and decorum," and that "the taking of photographs and the broadcasting or televising of court proceedings detracts participants and witnesses in giving testimony, and creates misconceptions with respect thereto in the mind of the public."

The ABA pointed out that radio and TV reporters have the same right to cover trials with pencil and paper and report their observations later as do newspaper reporters.

THE DUTY of judges and jurors the ABA maintained, is to administer the law according to the rules of evidence and not to be placed on display as if they were on a stage or in a TV studio. And the right of fair trial does not mean that the courts should be opened to the casually interested and curious.

Further the bar association believes that television would tend to lower the safeguards of our judicial processes designed to insure a fair and impartial trial, and open the way for decisions and verdicts to be influenced by mass psychology and emotion rather than by facts established by evidence.

THE ABA ALSO rejected a proposal to allow the trial judges themselves to determine the use of radio, TV and news photography in their own courts on the ground that in many states the judges are elected by the public and might be influenced by the opportunity for personal publicity.

The controversy will continue, however, although at the moment the broadcasters' cause seems all but lost. But Canon 35 does not have legal standing with the courts or the state bar associations unless adopted by the individual state judiciaries. And only about half of the states have adopted Canon 35.

Consequently, broadcasters, led by the National Assn. of Broadcasters, are continuing the battle at state and local levels.

Two Torrance men, division managers for the Prudential Insurance Co., will attend a March training seminar Monday.

The local delegation will include William Clement, 19207 Ronald, representing the Joseph H. Boydland agency, and Michael Powers, 165 W. Jay St., representing the Albert L. Jason agency.
